

POPE ASSAILS CRITICS, SEES CHURCH PERIL

responsibility for all who are the cause of them."

He cited two of the problems as:

"A lessened sense of doctrinal orthodoxy" toward the basic teachings of the Church;

"A certain diffused lack of confidence toward the exercise of our hierarchical ministry which, under a mandate of Christ, unites and guides the people of God on various levels."

The speech was in the vein of Pope Paul's frequent previous appeals to Roman Catholics for obedience to his rulings on birth control, priestly celibacy and other matters of faith and morals.

"Today," said the pontiff, "it is not easy to have a post of responsibility in the Church. It is not easy to rule a diocese, and we understand well the conditions in which our brothers in the episcopate must carry out their duties."

Deplores Criticism

But he added: "We cannot be unaffected by the criticism, not all precise, not all just, nor always respectful or proper, that come from various parts and direct itself against this Apostolic See under the more vulnerable name of the Roman Curia."

The Pope said that rather than rebut individually the various attacks on Vatican policies, he preferred to receive the criticisms with "humility and sincere objectivity," ready to consider plausible reasoning, disposed to modify certain changeable Church policies, desirous of continually renewing the spirit of Church canon law.

He also cited the second World Synod of Bishops, which he has convoked for October, as evidence that he, as Pope, is willing to listen to the complaints and the counsel of others in the Church.

29,500 MEN FACE DRAFT IN AUGUST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced today plans to draft 29,500 men in August as well as a decision to allow Army strength to drop by 13,000, partly in connection with the Nixon administration's plans for withdrawal of troops from Vietnam.

The August draft call compares with this year's monthly high of 33,700 in February and the low of 22,300 announced for July. All the August inductees will go into the Army.

In announcing the new call, the Pentagon said about 8,000 soldiers who are among the 15,000 Army men about to come out of Vietnam will not be replaced when they leave service.

No Replacements

In addition, the Army does not plan to replace another 5,000 men "whose terms of service expire due to reduced support requirements associated with the lower Army strength."

The manpower reduction will leave Army strength around the world at just above 1.5 million men. At the latest statistical count in April, the Army forces stood at 1,514,412.

Defense officials also indicated there would be a savings of around $130 million in the Army budget as a result of the cut-back. This is based on a rule of thumb estimate that it costs about $10,000 annually to keep a man in Vietnam.

UNDERWATER HABITAT SUNK IN LAKE HURON

TOBERMORY, Ont. (AP) — Canada's first underwater habitat, Sublimos, will be lowered into 30 feet of water today in Lake Huron. Scientists will use it for two years to study marine life, geological formations, water temperature and pollution.

Four scientists working eight-hour shifts will live in Sublimos, a two-unit bathysphere, 14 feet wide and nine feet high. It has four observation windows.

Sublimos also will be used to test human endurance to extended underwater living at depths of 500 feet and new scuba diving gear and underwater propulsion systems.

SCOTLAND YARD SEIZES CAR BOUND FOR GREECE

DOVER, England (AP) — Scotland Yard espionage detectives seized a car carrying high explosives at Dover as it was about to be driven on board a cross-channel ferry. They said it was going to Greece.

Traffic was halted and dock workers and vacationers were evacuated Saturday while experts dealt with the explosives.

Three people were arrested in court today at Dover, Britain's biggest cross channel terminal, in connection with the incident.

Apartment Sought to House Family Separated by Illness

A plea for a moderately priced furnished or unfurnished apartment in the Bridgeport area was issued today by the Rev. John D. Noble, pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal church, 784 Connecticut avenue.

Father Noble is seeking the apartment for Mrs. Viola Stanford, a native of Barbados, West Indies, who arrived here a year ago to take a job, leaving behind her husband and two children, aged six and seven.

The family was to have joined Mrs. Stanford, but shortly after her arrival, she became ill and was hospitalized.

Since that time Mrs. Stanford has been a patient at Bridgeport hospital, where she was in critical condition for three months. She is now well enough to be released.

Because of Mrs. Stanford's illness, her family had delayed coming to the United States. However, they have now had to make their departure from Barbados because their entry visa expires today.

Mr. Stanford and the two children are due to arrive at Kennedy airport in New York city this afternoon.

However, there is no housing awaiting them when they arrive in Bridgeport.

Father Noble has appealed to anyone who knows of an apartment to contact him.

The apartment should be on the ground floor, or should be easily accessible, because Mrs. Stanford cannot undertake strenuous activity.

Mrs. Stanford cannot leave the hospital until housing is found, Father Noble said.

NAVY TO KEEP KIN SHIP POLICY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the Pentagon will continue to allow members of the same family to serve together on a ship despite the loss of three brothers aboard the destroyer Frank E. Evans when it collided with an Australian carrier June 3.

Although multiple deaths in a single family in a single disaster are a matter of deep regret, it would, in the long run, be less compassionate to say that members of the same family may never voluntarily serve together, Laird said.

Laird had ordered a review of assignment policies after the Navy disclosed that three brothers of a Nebraska, Neb., family went down with the Evans when the Australian carrier slashed through her in the South China sea.

3 Victims

The three were Gary Sage, 22, Gregory Sage, 21, and Kelly Sage, 19.

Acting upon recommendations of a review panel, Laird authorized the services "to consider favorably" requests that family members be assigned to different ships but said they would not be prohibited from serving together if they requested such an assignment.

The review of assignments did prompt one policy change affecting families who have lost a member in the Vietnam war.

In the past, a member of a family which had lost a son in the Vietnam war zone either due to injuries or disease could be deferred upon request from serving in Vietnam for 12 months.

Under the new policy, Laird said, a surviving member may be permanently kept out of Vietnam, at his request.

POP FESTIVAL HAILED AS TORONTO SUCCESS

TORONTO (AP) — Tiny Tim sang "Tiptoe Through the Tulips" and waved his ukulele at more than 27,000 screaming fans.

Texan Johnny Winter twanged his blue guitar and got four standing ovations.

The Blood, Sweat and Tears group didn't bleed and they didn't weep—but they doubtless contributed some perspiration through their rhythmic ruck.

All in all, the two-day $200,000 Toronto Pop festival was termed a success by organizers Ken Walker, 23, and John Brower, 22.

"Not to plan an even bigger festival next year would deprive many beautiful Toronto people of something they obviously enjoy," said both.

RAIDERS NAB SUSPECT ON LIQUOR SALES RAP

MOVE STARTED AT OPENING OF ASSEMBLY

and consider it one of the items in the package that represents their own point of view.

Demsey Urges Approval

Earlier in the day Governor Demsey called on the Democratic legislative majority for approval of the compromise tax package and hit out at Senator Marcus for opposing it.

Characterizing Senator Marcus as an agreement breaker, the governor called for approval of the package worked out by the leadership last week after he vetoed the original tax bill June 4, forcing a special session with the start of the new fiscal biennium a week away.

Over the weekend Marcus announced he would not support the compromise program personally.

Meanwhile some key Senate leaders said they would go along on the package, chief feature of which is cutting the proposed sales tax increase back from six to five per cent.

The governor made his views known at a forenoon news conference in advance of the formal opening of the special session.

"I am very disappointed that Senator Marcus has seen fit to break the agreement reached last Thursday," the governor told newsmen.

Calls for Action

He expressed the hope that the remainder of Senate and House Democrats will keep the agreement and support the program "so that the state's business can proceed into the next fiscal year on an orderly basis."

He said he would not have called the Assembly into special session if he had not believed that agreement between himself and the legislative leaders was firm.

Meanwhile, Democratic State Chairman John M. Bailey echoed Governor Demsey's remarks when interviewed by newsmen.

Marcus "is renegeing on the agreement," said Bailey.

Senate Minority Leader Wallace Barnes characterized Marcus as "a captain deserting a sinking ship."

"He wants to be on both sides of the issue," said Barnes. "He wants to be able to say he was opposed to the tax increases."

The Farmington Republican said it also looked as if Marcus were "carrying on a vendetta with the governor."

If Marcus had had the Senate act on the tax package earlier in the last week of the regular session, "We could have handled the governor's veto during the regular session," said Barnes.

As the Senate convened today, House leaders on both sides of the aisle moved to put pressure on Senator Marcus for prompt floor action on the package.

The governor already has said he will sign the tax bill if it is approved by the Assembly.

Two Back Package

Prior to the opening of the special session, two key figures in the Democratic Senate, President pro-tempore Charles T. Alfano of Suffield and Sen. William F. Hickey Jr., of Stamford, assistant majority leader, said they would support the compromise tax program despite Senator Marcus' opposition.

The governor's veto of the original tax bill was based on a six per cent sales tax, which would exceed Pennsylvania's as the highest such levy in the nation.

The compromise package, in addition to calling for a five per cent ceiling on the sales tax, now three and a half per cent, also calls for revival of the unincorporated business tax and its application to professional people, such as doctors, lawyers, dentists and the like at a rate of 35 per $1,000 on gross income, and short term note financing of $32.5 million in funds for the Department of Community Affairs, as well as a $40 million cut in General Fund appropriations.

$112 Million Needed

Architects of the compromise said the program would meet the $112 million in funds that would be offset by the cutback of the sales tax from six to five per cent.

Other features of the tax package bill which are not in dispute include an increase in the corporation tax from five and a quarter per cent to eight per cent; a boost in cigarette taxes from eight to fourteen cents a pack; an increase in liquor taxes from $2 to $2.50 per gallon; a boost in insurance and gasoline taxes and a tax on CMS and Blue Cross premiums.

ICBM to Be on Display During Barnum Festival

The powerful Minuteman Intercontinental Ballistic Missile (ICBM) is on its way to Bridgeport.

However, there is no cause for alarm. This is a U. S. Air Force display missile which will be featured at the Midway of the Barnum Festival Wednesday through July 6 at Seaside park and the Festival's Air Show on June 29 at 12:30 p. m. at the Municipal airport.

The Minuteman is a key portion of the mixed force of missiles and manned bombers which gives the United States a balanced and potent deterrent against an enemy nuclear strike.

Relatively small and bullet-like in appearance, compared to the Atlas and Titan missile series, the Minuteman weighs between 60 and 70 thousand pounds, carries a nuclear warhead, and is about as tall as a six-story building. It is designed to be placed in hardened and dispersed sites virtually immune from enemy attack.

Fired from underground silos, it arches 700 miles high, covers intercontinental distances, and travels 22 times the speed of sound. It carries an unjamable, inertial guidance system.

There are 1,000 Minuteman ICBMs spread throughout five Strategic Air Command (SAC) bases across the country. The missiles are also at Vandenberg AFB, Calif., where SAC crews are trained in launch procedures.

The missiles are stored at the ready for many months in their underground silos requiring little maintenance. They are monitored constantly by missile combat crew officers, manning control centers buried deep below the ground. If directed by the President, they could launch the Minuteman ICBMs within seconds after receiving his order.

The Minuteman missile will be on display at the Barnum Festival and at the Festival's Air Show. These ICBMs are on the alert throughout the United States.

A Minuteman missile will be on display at the Barnum Festival and at the Festival's Air Show. These ICBMs are on the alert throughout the United States.

Senator Marcus denied that he is campaigning for support of his position among Democratic senators, but said he has contacted a number of them to inform them of his decision to vote against the proposal.

House support for the compromise package is reported to be tenuous, but is regarded as strong enough to vote the program through with the backing of the leadership. Should the Senate reject the program, however, House sources are indicating that all bets would be off in the House and a lengthy period of re-negotiation would be necessary before a new program could be worked out.

GRANT WILL AID DISADVANTAGED

City Gets $849,935 for Education of Low-Income Children

Bridgeport will get $849,935 in state funds in the two years starting July 1 to help provide better education for children from low-income families, the State Department of Education announced today.

A total of $15 million for state communities is in the form of "entitlements" from the state under Connecticut's state aid for disadvantaged children act (SADC). The SADC is going into its fifth year. The grants are based on the number of families in a community with incomes under $4,000 a year and on the number of children receiving aid to dependent children.

Hartford will get 9,802 families earning under $4,000 and 10,465 children on ADC. It will get the biggest amount, $1,368,635. Bridgeport with 9,313 families and 5,311 children, is third, following New Haven.

Danbury, with 1,853 families and 611 dependent children, will get $125,773 under the program. Norwalk, with 2,427 families and 1,044 children, gets $188,435, and Stamford, with 3,287 families and 1,234 children, receives $237,710.

The Education Department said the total number of families with under $4,000 a year incomes in Connecticut is 104,718, with 38,563 dependent children.

POPE PROCLAIMS SAINT; DEFENDS 'CULT'

VATICAN CITY—(UPI) Roman Catholics had a new saint today and Protestant critics of the church's veneration of saints had little hope that the practice would end in the foreseeable future.

Pope Paul VI proclaimed French-born nun Julie Billiart a saint Sunday and took the opportunity to reject indirectly Protestant criticism.

"No one may think that, honoring the saints, the Catholic Church detracts something from the honor owed to God alone and to Christ," the Pope said. "No one may call the cult of saints a superstition when in them the church seeks out and celebrates the source of holiness."

"We must recognize and honor God in his works. What is more beautiful and more great than a saintly soul?"

Tied into this year's Festival opening will be the opening of a section of the new Route 25, scheduled to take place tomorrow at 11 a. m. A "Caravan of Cars" led by a 1915 open Model T Ford driven by Edward Sheehan, will go along the route of the expressway, stopping near Prospect street for a ribbon cutting ceremony. After the ribbon cutting, the party will ride to the Stratfield for the Lions luncheon.

Plumber Talks Sought

Mediators were seeking today to arrange new talks for this week between striking plumbers and the Bridgeport Master Plumbers association.

The members of Local 173, Plumbers and Steamfitters union, rejected an offer from the contractors at a meeting last week, continuing the strike that started May 1.

aimed at Arab guerrilla bases. The Israeli army said the area was used as a sabotage base as well as an artillery emplacement. It accused the Arab inhabitants and the army of cooperating with the saboteurs.

All the Israeli commands returned safely to base, the army said.

Jordanian authorities said one person was killed and five persons wounded in the air attacks. There was no report on casualties in the commando attack.

The new fighting came as Cairo newspapers said high-level officials from Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon were holding meetings on "important developments expected in the near future."

The Israelis claimed they killed 15 Egyptians when they crossed Saturday night from the occupied Sinai desert to hit the radar station at Ras Abadiyeh.

An army spokesman said the station was destroyed and three buildings were blown up. He said the Israelis suffered two wounded and described Egyptian resistance as "not very strong."

A Cairo communique denied that any radar station was attacked. It said five Egyptians were killed and seven were wounded in the raid. It claimed four Israeli commands were killed and seven wounded.

The communique added that Egyptian commands who crossed the canal near the Great Bitter Lake Saturday night destroyed a tank and two armored cars in their first raid and wiped out an "enemy unit" in a second raid.

Israel said the Egyptian commands wounded four Israeli soldiers and crossed back to Egypt while artillery provided a protective barrage.

On the political front, Israeli sources said Premier Golda Meir would travel to Washington next month to confer with President Nixon. They said the date has not been set.

PARIS IS FIRM ON OLD POLICY

the job after former Premier Antoine Pinay, also an Independent Republican, turned it down Saturday despite Pompidou's urging.

Other indications of less rigid Gaullism in the cabinet are the naming of three Centrists to important posts—Rene Pleven, former premier, as minister of justice; Jacques Duhamel, another "Gaullist," as minister of agriculture, and Joseph Fontanet, minister for labor, employment and population.

All three urged "no" votes in the April 28 referendum that led to De Gaulle's retirement. But they rallied to Pompidou rather than support Centrist candidate Alain Poirer in the presidential elections June 15. All said Pompidou was the best guarantee of efficient government.

Missing from the new cabinet are three stalwart Gaullists—former Premier Maurice Couve de Murville; former Education Minister Edgar Faure, and former Minister for Cultural Affairs Andre Malraux.

Neither Couve de Murville, who was promoted to premier in July 1968, nor Malraux, a distinguished writer and an art historian who served De Gaulle out of personal loyalty, had been expected to remain.

Faure, a radical socialist who rallied late to the De Gaulle cause, had been responsible for the educational reform bill pushed through parliament after the student strikes and rioting last year. Pompidou had been critical of some aspects of the bill.

Besides Pinay, Chaban-Delmas told newsmen that Faure was one of two other persons who had refused ministries but he did not say which ministry he turned down. The other refusal, he said, was from Robert Poujade, secretary-general of the Gaullist Union for Defense of the Republic.

Poujade told Chaban-Delmas he did not feel his task as head of the union was finished.

Chaban-Delmas said that he had eliminated the Information Ministry, a campaign pledge of the defeated Poirer. Instead, Len Hamon, a Gaullist, will act as government spokesman and give news briefings on cabinet meetings.

Others named to important posts among the 18 ministers and 26 secretaries of state in the new cabinet are: Roger Frey, parliamentary relations; Edmond Michelet, cultural affairs; Raymond Marcellin, interior; and Olivier Guichard, national education.

Ray Bolger: Her Last Years Were Difficult—Mickey Says World Too Late To Understand and Love Judy

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL Mickey Rooney says the world was too late to understand and love Judy Garland.

"If they could have taken her to their hearts a little sooner, she might still be alive today," said Rooney, a child star with Miss Garland at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and later her costar in the Andy Hardy series.

Ray Bolger, who played the Scarecrow in Judy's best known film, "The Wizard of Oz," summed up the feelings of many Hollywood personalities who know Miss Garland.

World Bursts Her Bubble

"I think the whole world probably burst the bubble on Judy Garland," Bolger said in New York. "Her last few years must have been very difficult."

Margaret Hamilton played the wicked witch in "The Wizard of Oz" and first met Judy when she was 16. "When you work with someone on a picture you only know that side of them," Miss Hamilton said.

"But as far as I knew, she was a gay, daring, bubbly person, terribly talented. Everyone loved her."

Fred Astaire, who costarred with Miss Garland in "Easter Parade," said: "I did only one movie with Judy and found her a delightful person to work with. I feel very badly about what happened."

Jessel Recalls

George Jessel recalled that he gave the singer her stage name. "She was only 11 years old but she sang like a woman three times her age with a broken heart. They laughed when I introduced her as Frances Gumm, so one day I said, Judy Garland."

George Cukor directed Miss Garland in "A Star Is Born," for which she was nominated for an Academy Award.

"Judy was obviously a very talented woman, but many people missed the great essence of Judy—which was that she was an extremely sharp, an extremely intelligent person. But all her wit and all her intelligence couldn't save her," he said.

Star from Age of 3

A widely travelled child star from the age of 3, Miss Garland changed her name at the suggestion of George Jessel. Her first film in 1935 was a two-reel short called "Every Sunday Afternoon" but her first well-known movie was "Pigskin Parade." Her 1938 role in the "Wizard of Oz" catapulted her into the hearts of millions.

In 1940, 1941 and 1945 she was named one of the 10 highest paid stars in Hollywood, earning $150,000 a film. Her series with Mickey Rooney in the Andy Hardy stories was a national hit, still revived occasionally on the late-late show.

Her movies are estimated to have earned $100 million, but were tragically dogged her. At 18 she was under psychiatric care and consuming many kinds of pills.

She was divorced four times—in 1944 after a three-year marriage to composer David Rose; in 1951, after a six-year marriage to director Vincent Minnelli; in 1955, after a 13-year marriage to Sid Luft, her manager; and finally from actor Mark Herron, after a marriage of 19 months.

3 Children Survive

She has three children: Liza Minnelli, an entertainer, and Lorna and Joey Luft. All three were in the United States when they learned of their mother's death.

Miss Garland, who often showed up late for stage appearances in recent years, was boned off the stage in Australia in 1964. Once when she turned up late for a night club appearance, the audience started booing. "I've been through a lot," she explained. Then she sang, and they loved her.

Despite her troubles, Judy complained in a 1952 interview that she was "always being painted a more tragic figure than I am, and I get awfully bored with myself as a tragic figure."

Others weren't bored.

"She was a unique entertainer, a wonderful singer," said actor Eli Wallach. "It's tragic. She is somehow the painful product of the worst part of Hollywood."

Dancer Fred Astaire said: "She was unlimited in her talents and learned everything very quickly. One of the most talented women who ever lived."

The Rev. Peter Delaney, who conducted a service of dedication after Miss Garland's latest marriage and became a close friend, said: "I hope now that people will start to speak kindly of Judy. I shall never forget her tremendous strength through her frailty and her wonderful sense of humor even at the darkest times."

"She was—I'm sure—at peace, and has found that rainbow. At least I hope she has," said Mickey Rooney.

MAKES HONOR ROLL

Iva Katherine Case, daughter of Mrs. Sarah J. Case, 567 Sayre street, was named to the honor roll of Stetson University, DeLand, Fla.

Sgt. George Wesche, of the special service division, said Draggonette is accused of failing to appear for arraignment in Circuit court after being arrested on the narcotics charge last month. Bond was set at $5,000.

ABERNATHY DECLARES HE WILL START FAST

CHARLESTON, S. C. (UPI) — The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, jailed for the 27th time in his career as a civil rights worker, says he will begin fasting to dramatize the cause of 400 striking hospital workers.

Abernathy's wife, who met with him in the Charleston county jail Sunday, scheduled a news conference today. She was expected to announce a step in demonstrations.

Gov. Robert McNair reimposed a curfew on the port city after an abortive march led by Abernathy sparked violence Friday night. National Guardsmen were reactivated to help police enforce the 9 p. m. to 5 a. m. curfew.

Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership conference, was arrested while leading the march which violated a restriction against night demonstrations. He was held under $50,000 bond on charges of inciting to riot, rioting, parading without a permit and disorderly conduct.

SUSPECT REARRESTED ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

John Draggonette, 35, of 557 Hawley avenue, was rearrested yesterday by Bridgeport police on a Circuit court warrant charging him with violating the state narcotics laws.

Sgt. George Wesche, of the special service division, said Draggonette is accused of failing to appear for arraignment in Circuit court after being arrested on the narcotics charge last month. Bond was set at $5,000.
