

Bail Lowered For 3 GIs In McCoy Bombing Case

By IRVIN KREISMAN
(Of The Capital Times Staff)

Bail of $10,000 for Thomas M. Chase, Glenrock, N. J., and $5,000 each for Danie E. Kreps, Torrance, Calif., and Stephen G. Geden, Milton, Mass., was set Wednesday afternoon by U.S. District Judge James E. Doyle following an hour-long hearing.

The three soldiers, all 21 years old, were indicted by a U.S. grand jury Feb. 11 on four counts each in connection with a series of explosions at Camp McCoy last summer, and they entered innocent pleas when arraigned March 1.

A U.S. magistrate at Denver had set bail at $25,000 for Chase, and $15,000 for Geden and Kreps when the trio was placed under arrest at Ft. Carson, Colo., where they were stationed at the time of their indictment. Chase is single while the other two are married and have children.

Judge Doyle ordered Chase to post $1,000 bail in cash, and to sign a bond for the remainder.

Geden and Kreps each are to post $500 in cash, and to sign a bond for the balance. The court directed that none of the defendants are to leave Wisconsin except with the consent of the court, or unless compelled by the Army, which holds detainees on all three.

None of the three, who have been held in the Dane County Jail since their return to Wisconsin, was immediately able to put up the bail.

During the hearing U.S. Atty. John O. Olson, in answer to a court question, declared that in case the defendants were able to furnish bail the Army plans to process Geden for discharge immediately at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., and to return the other two men, both of whom have a short time yet to serve on their military duty, to Ft. Carson.

Chase was represented at the hearing by Atty. Henry Di-

Savio of New York and California, and Geden and Kreps by Atty. Melvin Greenberg of Madison. While arguing for a low bail for his client, DiSavio asked the court to set a September date for the trial. If the September date is granted, DiSavio stated, Leonard Weinglass, a defense counsel in the Chicago Seven trial last year, may take part in the Madison trial. Doyle, however, did not act upon the request.

Arguing that Kreps and Geden should have been permitted to go free on their recognizance, Atty. Greenberg said that both men intended to bring their families to Wisconsin and make this area their permanent home.

As an added argument for lower bail DiSavio claimed that the government had a weak case against all three men, and said that it took six months for an indictment to be returned. The hearing. When the three defendants were brought in before the session started, all the spectators stood and applauded for several minutes. The defendants then exchanged clenched fist salutes with many in the audience.

The courtroom was jammed with young spectators during the hearing. When the three defendants were brought in before the session started, all the spectators stood and applauded for several minutes. The defendants then exchanged clenched fist salutes with many in the audience.

Olson denied that the jury had considered the case "over an extended time before returning an indictment," and he offered to produce evidence to the court in private to prove the strength of the government's case.

At one time during the hearing Judge Doyle warned the audience to become quiet. The warning followed laughter from the crowd when Olson denied accusations by DiSavio that the government had obtained its evidence from the military but acknowledged that some may have been gained from the Army's Criminal Investigation Division (CID).

newspapers all across the country — and to other businesses as well. They are paying the price of Washington's failure to cope with the inflation virus sapping the strength of the economy. Madison newspapers were saved from a serious situation in 1970 by the opening of West Towne. But it simply postponed the showdown. Advertising budgets are among the first to be hit by rocky times.

Bandmaster Elmer Ziegler will direct the program.

partment that living costs have gone up again. This technique is also used to obscure the expansion of the war. While we invade a new country, the President, talking as though the war is ended, solemnly announces that we have fought our last war.

THE PRESIDENT announces a "revolutionary" medical care program. It consists of requiring employers to carry insurance that will provide $50,000 in coverage. Can it be that he doesn't know what inflated medical costs are doing to health insurance programs? I'd like the chance to tell him how much it is going to cost Madison Newspapers Inc. just to hold the line on the medical care now provided. What is needed, of course, is a program like other advanced countries of the world have — social medicine. But the American Medical Association won't permit it.

● Newspapers face another staggering cost increase — new mail rates beginning in May of this year. These rates will ultimately cost Madison Newspapers upwards of $100,000 a year. One can well imagine what they will add to the costs of a large newspaper like the New York Times with its mail circulation.

UW Engineering Science Expo Begins March 26

With the cooperation of state and national industry and government, Wisconsin will have another of its large Engineering-Science-Industry Expositions this spring.

The exposition, designed to reveal to people the important part science, engineering, and industry play in their daily lives in this age of ecological and environmental problems, nuclear power, missiles, satellites, and space capsules, will be held at the University of Wisconsin's engineering campus March 26-27-28.

Biggest science-engineering-industry show of its kind in the state, the exposition is held only every other year. More than 20,000 citizens from Wisconsin and other states visited the show in 1969.

Exhibits and displays will be housed in all the engineering buildings. Requests for show space indicate the exposition will include more than 100 exhibits and displays arranged by the University, industry, and government.

Handwriting Analyses Course

The Madison Central YMCA, 207 W. Washington Ave., will hold an eight-session course on handwriting analysis, beginning with an introductory class Tuesday, at 8 p.m. The first session, explaining more about the course, is free to anyone interested.

5-Day Series On 'Living' at Union

A five-day "Living Bizarre" will be sponsored by Wisconsin Union committees March 31-April 4, featuring programs on alternatives in living, home budgeting, crafts, home repairs and other aspects of student life. Students and interested faculty and staff are invited to participate in the program's plans and are encouraged to call the Union Program Office (262-2214) or 257-0701 ext. 462 with ideas.
